NEW VISITORS IN TOWN CAUSE A STINK

Yesterday, a group of tourists made their way into our small Mottson. A total of six rural folks entered yesterday with one coffin. The group of farm trash was out of control. The family made quite the scene during their journey through the small town.

The doughtier, Dewey Dell was first to start with the outlandish behavior. A witness claims that she stopped by Mosley's shop. She preceded to ask for the proper medication to conduct an abortion. Mosley, the churchgoing man he is, denied her the medication and suggested that she should marry the man that impregnated her.

Mosley the store keeper said himself "The churchgoing man I am denied her the medication and suggested that she marries the man that impregnated her."

The next ruffians to display eccentric behavior were The two brothers Darl and Cash. Cash had previously received an injury, and the two brothers thought it would be a great idea to buy cement to make a cast for his leg.

Cash was quoted saying "Us two brothers done try to fix my done darned leg."

Darl was trying to help, but it wasn't really helpful because the cast will most likely cause his leg to get amputated.

The most outrageous antic that the family of hooligans preformed was the mere act of brining the body into the town. Many of the town people complained about the stench of the body. It smelled so rancid that one of the residence of the town fainted after walking past it.

The man who fainted (wants to remain unnamed) reiterated what happened "I was innocently walking to the market and I smelt something and I figured it was one of those opossums that died in the street again, but then a cloud engulfed me and I started sobbing uncontrollably and screaming 'Help, somebody help me,' and then I blacked out and when I woke up there were my neighbors taking me to the doctors and thats all I remembered."

Fortunately the family passed and will most likely never come back.
